DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 4, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cowger (US 5565900 A) in view of Silverbrook (US 6443555 B1).

Cowger et al discloses the following claim limitations:

As per claim 5: a printing fluid storage mounted to the body (figure 4, element 101); a pagewidth printhead mounted to the body for a media substrate (figure 2, element 22), the pagewidth printhead having a first print chip and a second print chip (figure 1, element 22), the first print chip having an array of nozzles fabricated on a first monolithic substrate and the second print chip having an array of nozzles fabricated on a monolithic substrate that does not include the first monolithic substrate (figure 1, elements 22) and a fluid connection between the printing fluid storage and the first and second print chips (figure 2, elements 81) wherein the pagewidth printhead and the printing fluid storage are mounted to the body such that removal and replacement of the body by an end user of the printer cartridge simultaneously removes and replaces the printing fluid storage, the pagewidth printhead, and the fluid connection (the entire assembly is one structure, thus it would obviously be removed and replaced as a single structure). While Cowger et al. do not specifically disclose the length of the first monolithic substrate and the length of the second monolithic substrate when added together equal the length of the pagewidth printhead, there can be a plurality of print chips, thus two print chips satisfies a plurality of print chips such that the two print chips would add up to the length of the entire printhead.

As per claim 2: the printhead chips abut each other and extend the length of the printhead (figure 1).

As per claim 4: electrical connectors located at opposing ends of the printhead and in electrical communication with the first and the second print chips respectively (figure 1, element 54 - along entire printhead, including ends).

Cowger et al. do not disclose the following claim limitations:

As per claim 5: inserting the body into a complementary cradle and the length of the first monolithic substrate and the length of the second monolithic substrate when added together equal the length of the pagewidth printhead.

Silverbrook disclose the following claim limitations:

As per claim 5: inserting the body into a complementary cradle (figure 3, element 56).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the cartridge taught by Cowger et al. with the disclosure of Silverbrook et al. in order to provide a high quality printing apparatus. It is well known in the art to place printer cartridges in cradles.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
